

CIVCO Radiotherapy and Qfix have exciting news! Our organizations are combining to create one company with one Mission: To Improve Care and Outcomes for Patients and Providers through a Passion for Innovation. By combining our two great companies we will be Better Together. In addition, you, our valued customers, will benefit from better customer service (sales coverage and customer care), new and improved products and expanded R&D capabilities.

As many of you know, CIVCO RT focuses on improving outcomes for patients and healthcare providers worldwide by providing high-quality, innovative, patient-centric radiotherapy solutions. Qfix provides complementary state-of-the-art patient positioning and immobilization devices to optimize patient outcomes. In particular, we look forward to benefitting from Qfix's robust internal manufacturing capabilities to accelerate innovation and deliver improved products, faster – all while continuing to provide best-in-class customer care.

While we are enthusiastic about what the future holds, today is just the first step in our journey to become Better Together. Over the coming months we will work to integrate our two companies to effectively create and improve our best-in-class, customer-focused organization. We will keep you updated as we work through this process. In the meantime, it's business as usual.

Rest assured, we are focused on ensuring a successful and seamless transition for all our stakeholders. As for our relationship with you, we plan to continue building on our track record of superior products and robust customer care. In short, our commitment to you remains unchanged.

Thank you for the trust you place in us. We look forward to continuing to serve you in this next phase of our success.

To a future which is Better Together,

Nat Geissel
